

Empowering Change. Empowering Leaders.

NASS Educational Leadership for Social Justice Certification

Not on your watch!

Spreading a culture of equity and leveling the playing field for all students needn't be the responsibility of individual educators, but rather a collaborative community effort with leadership from teachers, school and district administration. By participating in the NASS Educational Leadership for Social Justice Certification, your classroom, school or district will be empowered to create a focused equity and social justice plan to ensure ALL students succeed.

That means, on your watch, equity and opportunity gaps will not only be acknowledged and addressed; parent engagement will skyrocket; language access will advance; and you and/or your team will have the tools it needs to unravel issues around social justice discourse.

Level up together... and reap the benefits

School or district-wide participation in the program includes membership in NASS for participating superintendents and deputy/ associate/assistant superintendents. Plus, a fee reduction of $500 per participant is available for schools that register a team of three or more!

Through the Leadership for Social Justice Certification, you benefit from professional learning that includes:

- A customized Equity Framework based on your specific job role.
- An Equity and Social Justice Plan that provides classroom, school and a systemic district-wide approach to advance social justice, reduce inequities and instill a culture of trust.
- Tools to aid implementation.
- Support to sustain social justice initiatives.
- Skills training to help you lead equity initiatives.
- National certification upon program completion.

Once certified, you'll be qualified and empowered, to take action on your organization's equity and social justice challenges.

The leadership and management online learning sessions included in the certification will move you from bystander to change agent.
